1. Constitution of India:

MC309/*MC409: CONSTITUTION OF INDIA

B.TECH II Year I Sem.

LT PC
0 0 2 0

The Constitution of India is the supreme law of India. The Parliament of India cannot make any law that violates the Fundamental Rights enumerated under Part III of the Constitution. The Parliament of India has been empowered to amend the Constitution under Article 368, however, it cannot use this power to change the “basic structure” of the Constitution, which has been ruled and explained by the Supreme Court of India in its historical judgments. The Constitution of India reflects the idea of “Constitutionalism” – a modern and progressive concept historically developed by the thinkers of “liberalism” – an ideology which has been recognized as one of the most popular political ideologies and resulted in historical struggles against the arbitrary use of sovereign power by the state. The historic revolutions in France, England, America, and particularly the European Renaissance and Reformation movement have resulted in progressive legal reform in the form of “Constitutionalism” in many countries. The Constitution of India was made by borrowing models and principles from many countries including the United Kingdom and America.

The Constitution of India is not only a legal document but it also reflects the social, political, and economic perspectives of the Indian Society. It reflects India’s legacy of “diversity”. It has been said that the Indian constitution reflects the ideals of its freedom movement; however, few critics have argued that it does not truly incorporate our own ancient legal heritage and cultural values. No law can be “static” and therefore the Constitution of India has been also amended more than one hundred times. These amendments reflect political, social, and economic developments since the year 1950. The Indian judiciary and particularly the Supreme Court of India has played an historic role as the guardian of people. It has been protecting not only basic ideas of the Constitution but also strengthening the same through progressive interpretations of the text of the Constitution. The judicial activism of the Supreme Court of India and its historic contributions have been recognized throughout the world and it gradually made it “one of the strongest courts in the world”.
